

RAPE RECOVERY CENTER

Donor Privacy Policy

At the Rape Recovery Center, we value and respect the privacy of our donors. This policy outlines how we collect, use, and protect your information.

Purpose of Donor Information:

To comply with donor restrictions, provide charitable giving tax information, and facilitate donor recognition programs; we retain donor information in our financial records and donor database for recording and internal financial accounting control.

Communication:

We may use donor information to keep donors informed about Rape Recovery Center activities, news, and fundraising campaigns by reaching out through our mailing list, which may include traditional mail, email, or telephone communications.

Online Donations:

Online donations are facilitated through NonprofitEasy and Stripe, both employing online technology to ensure the security and integrity of donor information. For details, please refer to the privacy policies of NonprofitEasy and Stripe on their respective websites.

Donor Rights:

Upon written request to the Executive Director of the Rape Recovery Center, donors have the right to access their personal information, specify corrections, oppose information retention, or request its elimination from our records.

We are committed to maintaining the confidentiality of your information. For any questions or concerns, please contact us at development@raperecoverycenter.org.
